ABOUT THE INSTITUTION

Founded in 1957 by the visionary Dr. T. S. Avinashilingam, Avinashilingam Institute for Home Science and Higher Education for Women is the first institution of its kind in India dedicated to women's education. It was declared a Deemed to be University in 1988 and has since expanded into diverse disciplines including Home Science, Science, Humanities, Education, Engineering, and Management. The School of Engineering, established in 1996, offers quality technical education with modern infrastructure and industry-oriented programs. Re-accredited with NAAC A++ and recognized under UGC Category I, the institution continues to empower women as leaders, innovators, and changemakers in society.

ABOUT ADVAITA

ADVAITA is the annual national-level technical symposium organized by Campus II of Avinashilingam Institute for Home Science and Higher Education for Women. It serves as a dynamic platform that unites talented students from various disciplines to exhibit their technical skills, creativity, and innovative ideas. Through a series of technical events, paper presentations, workshops, and interactive sessions, ADVAITA encourages participants to explore new horizons in science and technology. Over the years, it has evolved into a hub of learning, collaboration, and intellectual exchange, empowering young minds to think beyond boundaries and contribute meaningfully to the future of innovation.

OBJECTIVES OF ADVAITA 2K25

The primary objective of ADVAITA is to provide a platform for students to showcase their technical skills and creativity while fostering innovation, collaboration, and knowledge sharing. It aims to bridge academics with real-world applications, encouraging problem-solving and research orientation. The symposium also nurtures leadership, teamwork, and communication skills, inspiring participants to grow as innovators and contributors to technological and societal progress.
