🕘 09.00 AM to 05.30 PM

About the Institute

Avinashilingam Institute for Home Science and Higher Education for Women, Coimbatore, was established in 1957 as an aided college by the great patriot and educationist Padma Bhushan Dr. T. S. Avinashilingam, under the auspices of the Avinashilingam Education Trust, with an initial intake of 45 women students. The institution was nurtured and strengthened by Dr. Rajammal P. Devadas, a distinguished pioneer in Home Science. Today, its activities remain rooted in academic excellence, cultural and value-based enrichment, and social relevance.

About the Library

The Central Library, located at the heart of the campus and spanning 19,765 sq. ft., features a centrally air-conditioned reading hall with seating for 450 users. Fully automated with KOHA and custom-developed software, it offers seamless access to an extensive collection of print and electronic resources(7,99,826). As a proud member of ONOS, the library provides 24/7 remote access to its digital resources. To support academic and research needs, the library offers tools for grammar checking, plagiarism detection and citation databases. The library is designed to be inclusive, it is equipped with ramps, wheelchairs, assistive technologies, multimedia systems, and Braille books. Security and safety are ensured through RFID, CCTV surveillance and advanced fire safety systems.
